

GOB starts the year 2010 with new Microsoft Competencies

Within the frame of its partner program, Microsoft has granted two new competencies to the GOB: Data Management Solutions and SOA as well as Business Process. The Krefeld software and system integrator thus has six of the 16 Microsoft competencies and proves its extensive know-how in the field of innovative technologies.

"The award of these two competencies confirms the high level of our work and shows that we are on the right track," says Andreas Wessels, Managing Director of GOB. The employees of the company have passed various tests for certification. This also reflects the company's philosophy – the training and further education of the employees is of great importance to the GOB. "Besides the development of our sophisticated products, our qualified employees play a crucial role with regard to the company's success," emphasizes Wessels. In addition, GOB proved high customer satisfaction due to successful reference projects within the implemented solutions.

SOA and Business Process Competence

GOB has extensive knowledge within the companywide integration of data, applications and business processes. "We offer our customers integrated and modular e-business solutions, which connect information, systems and employees with each other and thus, ensure more efficient processes," explains Wessels.

Data Management Solutions Competence

Furthermore, the company is an expert for the implementation of database solutions. These include data warehouses, online analytical processing (OLAP), data mining and reporting. Services and tools, which support the migration, the management as well as the improvement of performance of databases, play another important role. Here, the SQL Server 2005 is the key product.

Press Release
